The Post-Master's Certificate in Advanced Clinical Practice is a two semester course of study that is unique in providing an integrated perspective in contemporary theories and practices in clinical social work. The program provides knowledge in the broad spectrum of contemporary cognitive and psychodynamic theories and practice techniques. We address the needs of practitioners in agency and private practices. The courses include Cognitive Behavioral Theory and Practice, Dialectical Behavior Therapy and Practice, Working with GLBT populations, Trauma and Treatment of PTSD, Domestic Violence, contemporary Attachment Theory and Research and Object Relations and Self Psychology models. Our program is unique in utilizing an integrative picture of different evidence based practices from cognitive approaches to in depth psychodynamic approaches reflecting the scope and breadth of contemporary practice. The program’s comparative approach reflects a commitment to subjective and intersubjective open inquiry and critical analysis through a multicultural perspective. Discussion topics include issues common to all populations receiving social services. These include issues related to gender, social class, race, ethnicity, religion, sexual identities, disabilities and immigration. We consider current and emerging theoretical and practice concepts. All the courses are taught by scholars/practitioners who are active in direct practice.

Topics include
- The importance of attachment in treatment models, short-term approaches to treatment utilizing cognitive behavioral and dialectical behavioral models of treatment
- In the second semester we examine psychodynamic theories in long-term treatment, emotional regulation, and the implications of trauma research and practice

How long will it take me to complete the certificate?
Two semesters. Classes meet every other week for eight two-and-a-half-hour sessions, unless otherwise noted. Regular class attendance is required to obtain your certificate. There will be a morning and an evening section.
